

MINER KILLED AT STONY FORK LATE MONDAY

Jess Brady, 30, Killed by Tip Long at Crystal—Shooting Seems Without Provocation—Family Trouble Hinted

ONE SHOT FIRED—SLAIN MAN DIES IN TWO HOURS

Jess Brady, miner, aged 30, was shot and killed near Crystal in Stony Fork Hollow, about four o'clock yesterday afternoon. Tip Long is held at the city jail in connection with the killing. The shooting was without provocation, according to statements made by witnesses and by Brady before he died.

It is said that Tip Long, who had just come in from Middlesboro had made threats that he was going to kill a man, Jess Brady, who had worked all day in the mines near there, is said to have met him and spoken to him. Witnesses say that Long answered the greeting with a curse, pulled a .45 calibre revolver from his pocket and told Brady he was going to kill him. The latter begged for his life, but Long is said to have fired one shot which entered Brady's left breast. The injured man died in about two hours.

Deputies Frank Mullins and Boone Turner arrived on the scene shortly after the shooting and placed Long under arrest. He made no statement in regard to the affair at the jail this morning.

The body of the deceased was brought to Middlesboro this morning by Dr. Jacob Scholtz, acting coroner, removed the bullet from the body of the deceased and held a formal inquest. The jury was composed of: Wiley Williams, E. A. Givens, H. Gaunt, Riley Hodges, Henry Williams and R. S. McGinnis. The verdict arrived at was that Jess Brady came to his death at the hands of Tip Long from the effect of a gunshot wound.

The deceased is a brother of Shell Brady, a son-in-law of Tip Long. It is believed that the killing was the result of some family trouble. He is survived by his wife, by his father, Jim Brady and his brother, Shell Brady. Funeral services have not been made.

The date for the preliminary hearing of Long has not been set. It is understood it will take place before County Judge J. S. Bingham some time this week. Long is about 45 years old and an employe of the mines at Crystal.

EXTEND EAST END TELEPHONE SERVICE

Local Cumberland Office Also Plans
New Cables For Binghamtown
And Noetown

Telephone service in the East End will be supplemented by the addition of another cable which will make possible twice the number of instruments in that section of town, according to Guy Glover, manager of the Cumberland Telephone company here. He recently received a letter from the state manager approving the study that he had worked out for this improvement. Money for the work has been appropriated and construction of the new cable will begin within a few weeks, it is thought.

Studies are being made of the systems in Binghamtown and Noetown and cables will be extended to these points if the estimates made by Mr. Glover are approved by the state office. These sections of town now have the open-wire service, the cables not extending that far. This greatly limits the number of phones in the sections as the company cannot afford to run single wires in places which are difficult to reach.

There are at present 943 telephones in Middlesboro and suburbs 248 having been installed during the past year. During the past five years the number of telephones and number of employes has doubled. With the completion of the East End cable and of others under consideration an even greater increase in business is expected by the company.

Other cables are congested but that one which serves the East End section is entirely filled with wires and not another telephone can be installed in this part of town until the new cable is completed.

BANDIT FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

Robbery Dead in Auto,

DENVER, Jan. 15.—The daring bandit who sood upon the running board of an automobile with the men who robbed the Federal Reserve Bank truck of $200,000 in front of the Denver mint last December, was found dead in an automobile in a garage here Sunday. His remains were unidentified today. He was about 35 years old, short and heavy set. The machine in which he was found frozen, stiff had been stolen from Brighton, Col. last October. The dead robber bore a gaping wound near his heart in his pocket was a large calibre revolver with a high powered rifle and shot gun in the car. The garage is in the fashionable Capitol Hill residence district and was rented a week before the robbery. When the rent was not paid yesterday the owner investigated and found the bandit dead.

GIBSON CONTINUES STIRRING SERVICES

One Hundred Professions of Faith Made in Baptist Revivals to Date

Exchange of the immortal soul for that which is earthly and perishable is "the worst bargain ever made," according to Dr. Finley F. Gibson in his soul-stirring sermon at the First Baptist church last night. His text was: "For what shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his soul."

"Shrewd business men who would not think of trading something of great value for that which is worthless, trade their souls for worldly pleasures which cannot last long, while the immortal soul will last millions and millions of years," he said. Several stories illustrating this point were told. He ended his sermon by making a stirring appeal for the unsaved to accept Christ as their personal saviour, to renounce their trade with the devil and attempt to win the grace of God.

Seven professions of faith were made and six persons joined the church. As usual, the song service led by Rev. Fred Scholtz was greatly enjoyed by the capacity audience. Mrs. J. W. Charlton, Mrs. Cecil Owsley, and Mrs. Russ Hill sang a trio: "Some-time, Somewhere."

Sixty-nine professions of faith and 26 additions to the church resulted from Sunday morning's service at the First Baptist church. Dr. Finley F. Gibson, of Louisville, who is conducting the series of revival meetings stated that it was the most wonderful service he had ever seen.

Dr. Gibson also spoke to the Baraca class of 300 men. At the close of his talk 20 men professed faith. Many of them broke down and wept. At the Sunday evening service here were ten additions to the church and at the service this morning there were four more. The majority of those professing the faith during the meetings are strong men who have never before appeared interested in their personal salvation.

Mrs. Gibson spoke to a mass meeting of the women of the church Sunday afternoon. Her address seemed to be greatly appreciated.

BILLY SUNDAY TABERNACLE SITE HERE PROPOSED

Ministers Of Middlesboro Mostly Favor Plan To Bring Him Here, But Some Think Plan Impossible And Impractical

LACK OF COOPERATION IN LOCAL CHURCHES FEARED

Site has been offered for a Billy Sunday tabernacle by the Christian church and Rev. A. B. Reeves and other ministers of the city are in favor of making an effort to bring the noted evangelist here for a revival campaign.

That the proposition of obtaining his services for Middlesboro is not impossible is proved by a statement which he made to Dr. J. A. Gray when he was here about a year ago: "Middlesboro is a peach of a town and nothing would please me better than to conduct a revival campaign here some time."

Though Dr. Gray is leaving the city soon for a larger church in Lexington, he says that he is heartily in favor of making every effort to bring Sunday here and that any movement of this kind would receive the sanction and hearty co-operation of the Presbyterians of the city. However, he was of the opinion that the vacant lots offered by the Christian church were not of sufficient size for a large tabernacle such as he evangelist uses.

"I have wanted to bring Billy Sunday here ever since I have been in Middlesboro," declared Rev. W. K. McClure. "If we could get him to conduct a revival here it would be one of the best things that has ever struck this town. I believe the churches and the general public will furnish the financial backing to make the plans materialize."

Rev. A. B. Reeves is a little doubtful of the co-operation of other churches and the general public. "We will cheerfully furnish the site and otherwise aid in the movement," he stated. "But I don't believe it will be possible to bring him here."

"I am in favor of the plan," said Rev. E. F. Burnside. "I have heard Billy Sunday preach several times and I am sure the city would be greatly benefited by his coming here."

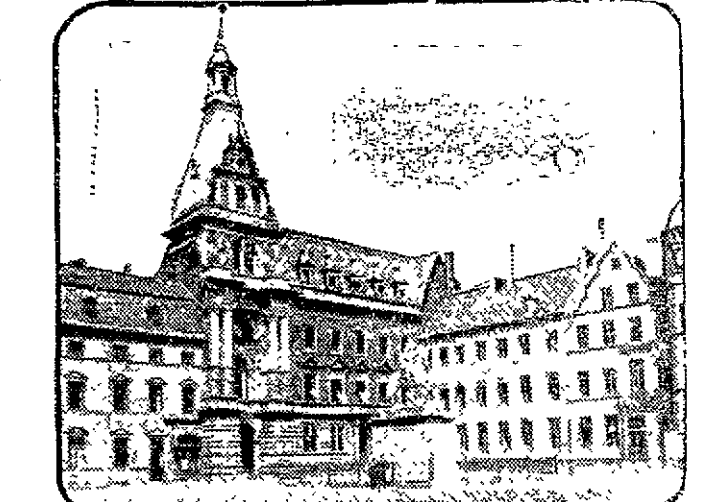

Rev. S. P. Martin did not seem very enthusiastic over the plans for bringing the evangelist here.

"It is altogether impossible," he said. "We would not get sufficient support to carry out the movement. I am not interested in the proposition."

A large number of the business men of the town seem to favor the plan while none have directly opposed it. It is thought also that the general public will welcome the opportunity of hearing the great evangelist in Middlesboro.

No definite steps have been taken toward carrying out the plans suggested and it is not known whether a sufficient interest will be aroused to make a more thorough investigation

Several hundred armed citizens still are walking the streets today searching for strikers in an effort to find persons responsible for the destruction of railroad property.

PROPER CARE OF BABIES STRESSED

Speaker Tells P. T. A. Last Night of Mountain Needs—Interesting Program Given

That the subject of maternity and proper care of infants is one upon which a large number of women are ignorant and that as a result of this lack of knowledge thousands of babies die yearly, was the theme of the address made by Dr. Anna Veech, of Louisville, before the Parent-Teachers' association meeting in the high school auditorium last night.

She spoke of the Shepherd-Towner bill which provides government aid for mothers and infants. The only limiting provisions are that the various states must appropriate the same amount as the federal government. She stated that forty governors had approved of the measure and that seven legislatures had acted favorably upon it.

The greatest causes of infant mortality are faulty feeding, impure milk, and flies. The larger cities, she said, have taken steps to remedy the two latter conditions. It is in the mountains where the mothers need to be taught.

In addition to Dr. Veech's speech, an interesting program was rendered. Various characters from the "Old Mother Goose" rhymes came out upon the stage in pantomimic portrayal of these parts.

Prof. John F. Surman rendered "Shubert's Serenade" as a violin solo. Also another number. Both were highly appreciated by the audience.

Miss Lela Wilson's room, of the primary department, won the picture for having the largest number of parents present. In the upper grades, a tie resulted between Miss Emily Gilmer and Miss Virginia Parker.

Prof. J. W. Bradner announced that the program for the next meeting of the association would be in charge of Miss Lillian Seay, music teacher.

of the possibilities of securing the evangelistic campaign. All that is sure at present is the site for the tabernacle and if this should be too small there are doubtless others that will be offered.

TRIGG THOMAS MEETINGS BEGIN

Earnestness of Evangelist Impresses Audience—Subject Last Night, "Prayer."

Dr. Trigg Thomas, famous evangelist began his three-weeks series of revival services at the Presbyterian church Monday night, under the most favorable auspices, and when he stepped upon the pulpit he was greeted by an audience that hung on every word he uttered, and went away impressed with the wonderful soul of the preacher, swept off their feet and captured completely by his great gifts.

Dr. Thomas spoke on "Prayer," a simple enough subject in itself, but under the master hand of this weaver of words into sublime thought it took on a new meaning and at the close of the service many were heard to remark, "I intend to hear every sermon he preaches, and nothing will keep me away from the services."

Rev. C. L. Nisbet led the song services and he and Mrs. Nisbet sang a duet. This feature in itself was enough attraction to draw and hold the large audience. A fine choir assisted him, and the church members were more than gratified at the success of the first meeting. In an interview with Dr. Thomas, he said:

"I am out for souls. I have no other object in coming to your city. Every thing I do; every word I utter will lead to that end. I want every Christian to pray that God will give us a great outpouring of his Spirit during these meetings, and many souls to be added to all the churches."

The meetings will continue nightly for three weeks, and it is pretty certain that all who were at the church last night will tell others and before he third night there will not be room enough in the largest building in the city to accommodate the crowd that will want to come.

STATE HIGHWAY
COMMISSION

The Courier-Journal has published as a feature of its annual review an illuminating article by Vance Armentrout detailing the history of the road bill fight at Frankfort last winter and the motives behind the Simmons bill offered as a substitute for the bill providing for a $50,000-000 bond issue.

The whole struggle was to take away from politicians the handling of the vast sums of money accruing to the road fund and assign that function to individuals whose past performances in the business and professional world were a guarantee of practical, economical, efficient administration. It was a protest against favoritism and waste in time, material and money.—The Courier-Journal.

The News holds no brief for the State Highway Commissioners. Messrs. Garrett and Asher are Republicans and Messrs. Weille and Samuels are Democrats. They are four successful business men in a large way, and with the exception of Mr. Garrett, none of them are politicians. In the selection of a State Engineer this board named Mr. Boggs who is a Democrat and politics has not a figure whatever in naming the subordinate engineers and other employees of the Department. There are today more Democrats than Republicans on the payroll. No charges of a direct nature have ever been brought against the board of graft, crookedness or corruption of any kind and not a single fact to their discredit was brought out against them in the partisan discussion of the Simmons bill before the last State Senate.

It is true as another part of the editorial in the Courier-Journal states that the Road Department expends more money than the Educational Department but that is not to the discredit of the Commission if the money is properly expended. Four-fifths of the money comes from automobile license fees and the tax on gasoline.

The News has been inclined to think that the roads built under the direction of the State Highway Commission have been at too great a cost per mile. We are still inclined to that position but we have investigated the expenditures in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and North Carolina and find that the price per mile differs but little and in some instances they were higher than in Kentucky, and it must be realized that the grading in Kentucky costs more than in the Northern States.

We are not going to enter into a discussion of the Simmons Act, which has been declared unconstitutional by the Court of Appeals, except to say that it was strictly a partisan, political measure and came from a Democratic political caucus.

The friends of the Simmons Act rested their case, not in charges against the present Commission, but upon the idea that Gen. Sibert, a United States Engineer, would give greater efficiency and better execution than Mr. Green Gbrett as Chairman of the State Commission. The record of Gen. Sibert would seem to indicate that, but we call the attention of the Courier-Journal to the fact that everything ever built under the direction of United States Engineers, wide well built, has been the most expensive.

The road through Camp Knox we file as an exhibit of this statement.
It is ten miles long and was built under the direction of United States engineers at a cost exceeding $1,000-000, or more than three times as much per mile as the roads built under Mr.
Boggs, and not nearly as well built.

We fully realize that if the Democrats elect the Governor and the Legislature this year, which seems certain there will be a big shake up in the Road Department. Politics if nothing else will do this, and if the shake-up comes we hope General Sibert will be put at the head of the Commission, but we want to say to our esteemed contemporary that the desire to have Gen. Sibert at the head of the Road Department should not blind it to do justice to the present State Highway Commission by calling the members politicians, when none of their acts have been political, and while the charge that there has been waste in time, material and money remains unproven. The State Highway Commission has a big job and the members have brought their business ability to deal with it. They have probably made mistakes but the editor of The News, who has always been in the fight for good roads in Kentucky, thinks they have done fairly well and is not willing to condemn them without proof.—Elizabethtown News.

MIDDLESBORO
HOSPITALITY

If there is one thing that makes everybody who visits Middlesboro, Kentucky once want to visit it again,
it is the glad hand, open hearted welcome that is given by everybody, especially coal men. This spirit of generosity is not only extended to visitors but is continually being shown locally, not only in fat years but even in the leanest in the coal business. Not an exceptional example, but a typical one, is the remembrance of J. L.
Manning, the well known coal, real estate and insurance man, ex-mayor and prominent citizen generally, of every patient in the Broshier-Brunmett hospital with a bouquet of beautiful flowers. Doubtless there were patients in the hospital whom J. L. did not know, nor had ever seen, but this free hand of good will is typical of the Middlesboro spirit of generosity and hospitality.

One whose generosity at Christmas time especially, and let all other seasons of the year, was missed this year in Middlesboro, was the lamented late Daniel Cooper Swab, whose liberality at this time of the year was always directed particularly toward the orphans and other friendless ones.
In no part of Kentucky is the spirit of Kentucky hospitality, in the broadest meaning of the word, in greater evidence than in Middlesboro nor in any part of the state is it practiced with less thought of return.—

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

The Fairy Queen sent word to the Twins by Silver Wings, one of the fairy messengers, that if Mr. Dusty Coat, the sandman, would spare them and take care of Dreamland of himself for a while, she would like very much to have them help her in another part of her kingdom.

So, leaving Dreamland (after saying goodbye to Dusty Coat who said he could manage alone nicely) Nancy and Nick wished themselves at the Fairy Queen's palace.

The good queen was on her throne, looking ever so upset about something, and before her stood a funny little man in a blue cap and blue coat with a row of buttons down the front. Only he was holding his cap in his hands now, as one never stands before a queen with his hat on.

"Mr. Stamps, this is Nancy and Nick, the Twins I told you about," the queen said. "Children, this is Mr.
Stamps, my fairy postman. He runs the postoffice in Fairyland."

"How do you do?" said Nancy, making a courtesy.

"How do you do?" bowed Nick.
"The very best I can, thank you," sighed Mr. Stamps, bowing also and saying he was very delighted to meet them both.

"Mr. Stamps says he is having a dreadful time," the Fairy Queen informed them. "He says the people write so poorly he cannot read the addresses and as a result he has to put all the letters in the dead letter office. That's what they call lost letters, you know. Do you think you could help him to straighten out his tangle?"

"Oh, I'm sure we can," said Nancy.
"Can't we Nick?"

"I was thinking," said the little boy, "that perhaps the Green Wizard would make us a pair of magical glasses to read bad writing."

"A fine idea! Why you're helping already!" declared Mr. Stamps ad-miringly. "How soon do you think you can come?"

"Right now if you need us!" answered Nancy and Nick.

"Hi, there, Billy! Yotta see

It's a cave! It's gonna be—Gee, it's gonna be a big 'un.
It'll be a secret spot, Say, us kids'll be in clover.

Hi, there, Billy, come on over!"

So youth calls to youth,
Seeking comrades of a feather.

Fun is better shared together.

Every normal boy will say,
"Hi, there, Billy, come on over!"

THERE'S a moral in this song,
One I think of sterling merit:
Joy will last you twice as long
If there's someone else to share it.
How blind hate would flicker out,
If—from Timbuctu to Dover—
Men and nations, too, would shout,
"Hi, there, Billy, come on over!"

ONE-MAN WOMAN

By Ruth Agnes Abeling.

KATE WARD, widow of
DAN WARD, living with her father,
JUSTIN PARSONS, has a visitor, CHINATOWN ALICE, who says Dan was father of her child, DOROTHY. Later she sends word that Dorothy is ill, but Kate seeking to render aid cannot find the little one at the hospital to which Alice says she was sent. Then one evening, their dog,
MONK, leads Kate and her father to a lonely spot where they find an unconscious man. They carry him home, he recovers and gives his name as

JAMES LATHAM. Latham is attracted to Kate. He invites her auto and she asks him to take her to the laundry of SING LOY, with whom Alice lives. As she steps inside, the first persons she sees are Alice and Dorothy.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Don't try to hide the child—I've seen her," Kate's voice was casual.
She walked back toward Alice.
I've known that she hasn't been at the hospital and certainly she doesn't look as if she'd ever been ill," she continued.

Alice made no reply. She looked at Kate sullenly and then at the child.
Again Kate sensed, as she had the first time she saw Alice a hint of tragedy. There was something pitiable about the girl—something more than merely the fact that she worked hard and in surroundings which might have been better.

Something more even than a romance, which had gone awry and died—such as that with Dan might have been, if indeed she had known Dan.
In spite of Alice's attempt to deceive, Kate felt nothing but pity for the girl.

"Perhaps," she began gently, "if you'll tell me just what you needed Business might get better re-quick if it was against the law.

the money for I can help you—ere though Dorothy isn't ill?"

"Still no answer from the girl.
"I should like to be your friend.
Kate's tone was very kind. She might have been speaking to her own sister.
"I should like to help you—you can trust me."

Silence. The other girls in the room went on with their ironing as if notiing were happening. They passed back and forth to the store room with their eyes straight ahead.

"I haven't had many friends—Alice was looking beyond Kate at talking half to herself.

"Then let me be one—I shall try to be a real friend," Kate's tone was low and even.

The silence which followed seemed interminable. At length Alice spoke.
"Have you ever loved anyone?" She was looking at Kate. There was new light in her eyes—a light which gave the thin white, little face an almost spiritual look. "Oh—I don't mean in the way people accept the relatives, or in the way some wives accept their husbands and some hubands accept their wives—I mean realy cared?"

Kate felt faint. It seemed that words were coming from afar. The girl—this girl talking to her of love She waited, expecting, next to her the name of the man she had loved so devotedly on the lips of Chinatown Alice.

"I—I have—" Alice's voice had risen to a hysterical pitch. "I have and now—"

Alice was sobbing wildly. One of the girls at the ironing board paused a moment to look toward her inquiringly. Kate stood dumbly by Sung Loy shuffled in.

"Laltee—Laltee—she work too hard.
She cry—cry. And hurt here." With one slim hand over her heart, the oriental stood near and looked at the weeping girl, pitiously, compassionately, carelessly.

Have You A Garden?

"Have you a garden?"
"No, I only see
A place of beauty
Where I find would be;
A place wherein I dwell
I thought alone;
An inner vision
That I call my own.
That is my garden.
There I walk awhile.
And laugh because it laughs,
And smile its smile;
And kiss the flowers
That the sunlight brings,
And chant the melodies
The wild thrush sings.
Stars round my garden
With their night-time rise,
And whisper to me secrets
From the skies;
And when the moon's afar Amidst the blue,
I breathe the scene
That rises with the dew.
Thus, as I walk the city street,
It seems
I dwell amidst the garden
Of my dreams."

Good Manners

The hostess at an "informal afternoon tea," needless to say is well dressed.

A clinging gown, for instance, is quite appropriate.

Yet the tactful hostess does not overdo matters, for her guests will come simply attired and it would hardly be hospitable for her to be much more elaborately clad than they.

Miss Mary Brooking, Pineville, Announces Engagement

The engagement of Miss Mary Towns Brooking, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Brooking, of Pineville, to Mr. Mount Engles, also of Pineville, was announced at a 6 o'clock dinner party at the home of Miss Brooking last Friday night.

The table was centered with a miniature frieze dressed in white satin and veil, from which were hung white satin ribbons to each plate. On the end of the ribbon was fastened a small calendar of March, when the wedding will take place.

The guests included Miss Genevieve Low, Miss Katherine Bingham, Miss Mary Heath, Miss Mary Foley, Mrs. Fanny Lemm, Miss Hattie Harts, and Miss Martha Willis.

Miss Brooking and Mr. Engles are both well-known in Middlesboro.

To make tasty hot ham sandwiches, spread half the slices of bread with butter, the other half with fine-chopped ham, seasoned with mustard if desired. Press the slices together in pairs. The slices should be cut very thin and freed from crust. Beat an egg, add half a cup of rich milk and soak the sandwiches in the mixture a few seconds. Heat two tablespoons of butter, or fat from mild-cured bacon, in the frying pan, and lay the browned sandwiches, first on one side and then on the other.

A THOUGHT

The Courier-Journal has published
an illuminating article by Vance Armstrong detailing the history of the road bill fight at Frankfort last
winter and the motives behind the Simmons bill offered as a substitute
for the bill providing for a $50,000-000 bond issue.

The whole struggle was to take
to the road fund and assign that function to individuals whose past performances in the business and professional world were a guarantee of practical, economical, efficient administration. It was a protest against
favoritism and waste in time, material
and money.—The Courier-Journal.

The News holds no brief for the State Highway Commissioners. Mes-
srs. Garrett and Asher are Republicans and Messrs. Welle and Samuels are Democrats. They are four successful business men in a large way,
and with the exception of Mr. Garrett,
none of them are politicians. In the selection of a State Engineer this
board named Mr. Boggs who is a Democrat and politics has cut no figure whatever in naming the subordinate
engineers and other employees of the Department. There are today more Democrats than Republicans on the
payroll. No charges of a direct
nature have ever been brought against
the board of graft, crookedness or corruption of any kind and not a single
out against them in the partisan discussion of the Simmons bill before the last State Senate.

It is true as another part of the editorial in the Courier-Journal states
that the Road Department expends
more money than the Educational Department but that is not to the dis-
credit of the Commission if the money
is properly expended. Four-fifths of the money comes from automobile
license fees and the tax on gasoline.

direction of the State Highway Com-
expenditures in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois
and North Carolina and find that the
than in Kentucky, and it must be realized that the grading in Kentucky
costs more than in the Northern States.

We are not going to enter into a
has been declared unconstitutional by
the Court of Appeals, except to say that
measure and came from a Democratic
political caucus.

against the present Commission, but
upon the idea that Gen. Sibert, a United States Engineer, would give
greater efficiency and better execution than Mr. Green Gherrett as Chairman of the State Commission. The record

that, but we call the attention of the Courier Journal to the fact that
everything ever built under the direction of United States Engineers, while well built, has been the most expensive.

The road through Camp Knov we
file as an exhibit of this statement.
It is ten miles long and was built
under the direction of United States
engineers at a cost exceeding $1,000-000, or more than three times as much
per mile as the roads built under Mr.
Boggs, and not nearly as well built.

We fully realize that if the Demo-
Legislature this year, which seems
the Road Department. Politics if
nothing else will do this, and if the
shake-up comes we hope General Sibert
our esteemed contemporary that the desire to have Gen. Sibert at the head of the Road Department should not blind
it to do justice to the present State Highway Commission by calling the
members politicians, when none of
their acts have been political, and
waste in time, material and money
Commission has a big job and the
ability to deal with it. They have
probably made mistakes but the editor of The News, who has always
been in the fight for good roads in Kentucky, thinks they have done fairly
them without proof.—Elizabethtown
News.

HOSPITALITY

If there is one thing that makes
everybody who visits Middlesboro, Kentucky once want to visit it again,
it is the glad hand, open hearted welcome that is given by everybody, especially coal men. This spirit of generosity is not only extended to visitors
but is continually being shown locally,
not only in fat years but even in the
exceptional example, but a typical
one, is the remembrance of J. L.
Mauring, the well known coal, real estate and insurance man, ex-mayor
and prominent citizen generally, of every patient in the Brosheer-Brunnert hospital with a bouquet of beautiful flowers. Doubtless there were
patients in the hospital whom J. L.
this free hand of good will is typical
of the Middlesboro spirit of generosity and hospitality.

One whose generosity at Christmas time especially, and at all other seasons of the year, was missed this
year in Middlesboro, was the lamented
late Daniel Cooper Swab, whose liberality at this time of the year was always directed particularly toward
the orphans and other friendless ones.
In no part of Kentucky is the spirit of Kentucky hospitality, in the broadest meaning of the word, in greater
evidence than in Middlesboro nor in
with less thought of return.—

The Fairy Queen sent word to the Twins by Silver Wings, one of the fairy
messengers, that if Mr. Dusty Coat,
take care of Dreamland by himself for a while, she would like very much to
have them help her in another part
of her kingdom.

"So, leaving Dreamland (after say-
and Nick wished themselves at the Fairy Queen's palace.

"The good queen was on her throne,

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

HI, THERE, BILLY!

By Berton Braley

"Hi, there, Billy! You'll see What the gang of us is diggin'!
It's a cave! It's gonna be—
Gee, it's gonna be a big 'un.
If there's someone else to share it, Say, no kids! Be in clover, We'll be pirates, like as not.
Hi, there, Billy, come on over!"

So youth calls to Youth,
Seeking comrades of a feather,
Kids who know the simple truth,
Fun is better shared together.
Not for them the lonely way:
City-bred or country rover,
Every normal boy will say,
"Hi, there, Billy, come on over!"

THERE'S a moral in this song,
One I think of sterling merit:
Joy will last you twice as long
If there's someone else to share it.
How blind hate would flicker out,
If—from Timbuctoo to Dover—
Men and nations, too, would shout,
"Hi, there, Billy, come on over!"

"FIRE! FIRE!"

By Ruth Agnes Abeling.

DAN WARD, living with her father,
JUSTIN PARSONS, has a visitor, OHINATOWN ALICE, who says Dan
was father of her child.

DOROTHY. Later she sends word
says she was sent. Then one evening, their dog.

MONK, leads Kate and her father to
a lonely spot where they find an un-

JAMES LATHAM. Latham is attached to Kate. He invites her autoing and she asks him to take her to the laundry of SING LOY, with whom Alice lives. As she steps inside, the first person
she sees are Alice and Dorothy.

"Don't try to hide the child—I've
seen her," Kate's voice was casual.
She walked back toward Alice.

look as if she'd ever been ill," she continued.

Alice made no reply. She looked
at Kate sullenly and then at the child.
Again Kate sensed, as she had the
first time she saw Alice a hint of
tragedy. There was something pit-
might have been better, something more than the fact that she had the responsibility of another mouth to feed beside her own and another body to clothe. It was something Kate felt, deep within the girl,
something more even than a romance,
which had gone awry and died—such
as that with Dan might have been, if
indeed she had known Dan.

In spite of Alice's attempt to deceive, Kate felt nothing but pity for
the girl.

"Perhaps," she began gently, "if
you'll tell me just what you needed
quick if it was against the law.

Business might get better quick if it was against the law.

Have You A Garden?

Have you a garden?
 'No I only see
 A place of beauty
 Where I am would be
 A place wherein I dwell
 I thought alone,
 An inner vision
 That I call my own
 That is my garden
 There I walk, awhile
 And laugh because it laughs
 And smile its smile
 And kiss the flowers
 That the sunlight brings
 And chant the melodies
 The wild thrush sings
 Stars round my garden
 With its night time use
 And whisper to me secrets
 From the skies
 And when the moon's aloft
 I am in the blue,
 I breathe the scene
 That rises with the dawn
 Thus, as I walk the city street
 It seems
 I dwell amidst the garden
 Of my dreams'

LONG BRANCH GIVES MEN INSURANCE

Takes Out 75 Policies With Metropolitan Co., District Offices Which Located Here

Following the example recently set by the Chumax Coal company which gave a Metropolitan life insurance policy to each of its 125 employees, the Long Branch coal company contracted yesterday for 75 policies which will be given free to each man in its employ. The policies are for $500 and will increase $200 each year until they reach $1000.

The Metropolitan is getting its business fairly launched in this district, according to W. R. Estep, district manager. Its territory extends from here to Lynch, including all intervening towns and will later include towns from here to LaFollette, Tenn., as well as several towns in Virginia. It already has 2300 policy holders in Middlesboro and suburbs.

Miss Nina Mahan who recently resigned her position at the Brooker-Brunnett hospital to become a Metropolitan nurse will begin work here as soon as her appointment which is now on the road, arrives.

Middlesboro is fortunate in securing the district office of this large company. It invests $1,000,000 per day in this country and this town will share in the benefits accruing from this. In addition to their public nursing service they give out large quantities of health literature, institute and co-operate with the city in clean-up campaigns and, in general, render a great public service.

The company is expecting to enlarge its present quarters as its business grows. It is not unlikely that an entire floor will be used for their offices.

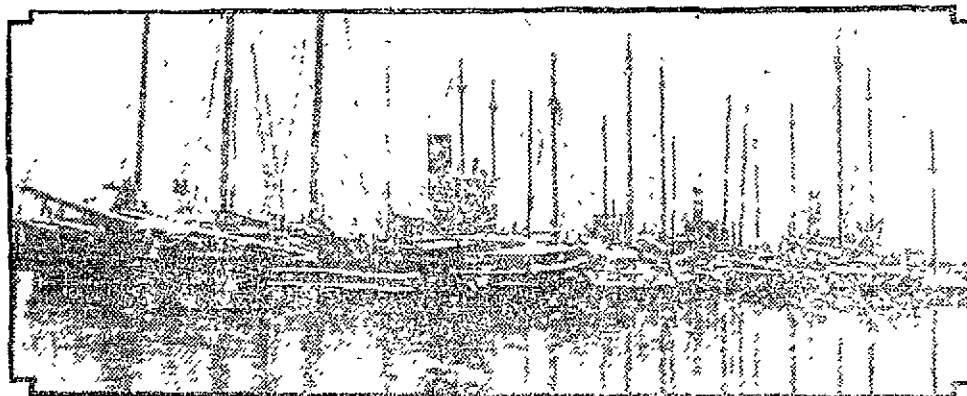

Several other coal companies are planning to give their employees free policies and it is thought that eventually all of them will invest this much in the good will of their men. The only requirement for eligibility of a policy-holder set by the two companies above mentioned is that he be in their employ 60 days previous to the issue of the policy.

COUNTY SCHOOLS CLOSE FRIDAY

Terms Began July 1, Finish This Month—77 Rural Districts In Bell

PINEVILLE, Jan. 16.—Most of the district schools in Bell county will close next Friday, January 19, according to Claude Wilson, county superintendent. Of the 77 in the county, 72 have been running this winter, with terms beginning July 1 and ending either next Friday or Feb. 1. The five schools which have been closed could not be opened for lack of teachers and the schools are Monarch, Dark Ridge, Laurel Fork and Turner, all near Middlesboro, and Cery, about three miles from Pineville. Teachers have been secured for these districts and work will begin in them within the next two weeks.

In the county schools there is an attendance of about 5,000 white pupils and 200 negro. During the first six months of the school the attendance has been very good. Mr. Wilson said, but the last month the percentage drops off considerably due to bad weather, the bad roads and distances to be traveled. There are at present thirty pupils from the county schools who are attending the Pineville or Middlesboro high schools.

For the 77 schools there are 104 teachers employed, many of the schools having more than one room. The salaries range from $70 to $87.50 a month and requirements for teaching is completion of the eighth grade, one year in high school, a certificate and five weeks normal training.

LOVETT HOUSE DOES LARGE BUSINESS LAST YEAR

Stockholders of the Lovett Fruit and Produce company held their annual meeting last Friday. This company has done a million dollars worth of business at its three houses during the past year, making this probably the biggest year they have ever had. Figures presented showed, too, that Lovett's was the biggest receiving shipper of goods in their line in eastern Kentucky.

Officers elected were: L. S. Salvat of Gatlin, president; T. R. Hill, of Middlesboro, vice-president and general manager; Clyde Lawson, of Harlan, secretary and treasurer. The directors are the three officers and L. R. Reams of Corbin, and George W. Bence, of Eleora.

If Back Hurts Begin on Salts

Flush your Kidneys occasionally if you eat too much meat.

No man or woman who eats lots of meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much meat may form uric acid, which clogs the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood; then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus often ending bladder disorders.

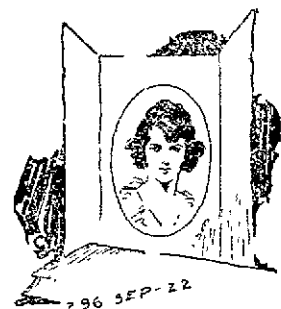

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

SULPHUR SOOTHES UGLY, ITCHING SKIN

The First Application Makes Skin Cool and Comfortable

If you are suffering from eczema or some other torturing, embarrassing skin trouble you may quickly be rid of it by using Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist.

This sulphur preparation, because of its germ destroying properties, seldom fails to quickly subdue itching, even of fiery eczema. The first application makes the skin cool and comfortable. Rash and blotches are healed right up. Rowles Mentho-Sulphur is applied like any pleasant cold cream and is perfectly harmless. You can obtain a small jar from any good druggist.
